Vernal sunshine

We are releasing eight new wines this spring: four mouth-filling reds, three dry whites and a delicious rosé. Our spring release includes a spirited 2024 Anderson Valley Pinot Noir, a full-bodied 2023 Red Roan (a Rhône-inspired blend of Grenache, Syrah and Mourvèdre), a medium-bodied 2023 Syrah and a value-packed 2024 Navarrouge which is available for as little as $16.50 per bottle by the full case, a modest price for this palate-pleasing wine. Two stylistically varied 2024 Chardonnays are being released as well as a springtime-fresh 2025 Sauvignon Blanc and a beguiling 2025 Rosé of Pinot Noir. Special full-case prices on the eight new releases will be available until May 31 along with One-Cent ground shipping and reduced air freight for all 12-bottle orders.

Mendo roots

We purchase local Syrah grapes primarily for our Red Roan—a Rhône-inspired blend of Syrah, Grenache and Mourvèdre. The 2023 harvest yielded more Syrah than we needed for the Red Roan wine leaving us with seven remaining barrels of a wine that was quite charming on its own. We decided to bottle the excess barrels with a 13% addition of Grenache to add a strawberry element and soften the tannins. The grape clusters were destemmed and the must punched down by hand during fermentation. After pressing, the wine was aged 10 months in seasoned French oak barrels. Sparks of blueberry, black cherry jam complement hints of dark chocolate, leather and balanced tannins. Double Gold Medal winner.

Barrels after toasting at Billon Cooperage, Beaune, France. We prefer Billon barrels for our Chardonnay since they customize the aging process for the oak planks used for Navarro's barrels, aging them outside for three years rather than the customary two. This extra year of aging produces a pleasing balance between fruit and oak and eliminates any green-wood character.

Alfredo stirring Chardonnay barrels. When wine is fermented in the barrel we stir once a week to keep the lees in suspension, thereby minimizing oxidation and diacetyl, and adding body and a softer mouthfeel.

Woodwork

Most wine consumers realize that two winemakers can harvest grapes from the same vineyard on the same day and the resulting wines they bottle will be quite different. We think the same thing is true for Burgundian coopers. When we purchase barrels we specify the forest—Allier or Tronçais oak which is tight-grained for finer tannins and subtle aromatics of vanilla and Asian spices. We ask for a medium toast which highlights round, sweet tannins without strong smokey characteristics. We also spell out how long the oak is to be aged before fashioning barrel staves (two years for Pinot Noir and three for Chardonnay). We've aged wine in barrels from probably a couple of dozen coopers and the resulting wines were remarkably different. We did a trial around 1998 and tried both 24- and 36-month aged staves. The Chardonnay in 36-month barrels was rounder, less drying and produced a pleasing balance between fruit and oak. The 2024 Première

Reserve Chardonnay was estate grown, fermented and aged sur lie for eight months in Billon barrels, 20% new, from Allier oak planks air dried 36 months with a medium toast. This wine boasts a plump mouthfeel and features Philo's signature of poached pear and lemon united with barrel flavors of vanilla, Asian spices and buttered brioche. Silver Medal winner.

We aged most of this cuvée in seasoned 135-gallon puncheons, double the volume of a barrel. These were purchased specifically for Chardonnay and produced by Billon cooperage from tight-grained oak air dried for three years.

Ripping out a vineyard in the Hammer Olsen field. We removed the vines and trellis manually with a tractor after harvest in 2025. Next we ripped out the roots with this Cat to a depth of three feet. The ripping is done in both directions so that new vines, to be planted in Spring 2026, can establish deep roots quickly.

Let 'er rip

Demand for wine is down and there are excess grapes. Vineyards are being abandoned or pulled out but there remains a glut of wine that will take years to ameliorate. International costs are skyrocketing:

our barrels are from France, bottles from Mexico, label paper from Canada, corks from Portugal and foils from Italy. Keeping Navarro's loyal customers happy with medal-winning wines at reasonable prices is increasingly challenging. We are delighted with this Chardonnay which is grounded and produced entirely in Philo's Boontling Loam soils which have moderate water-holding capacity and depth. This suits Chardonnay and other cool-climate varieties allowing for controlled stress which helps preserve acidity and aromatics. 60% of the wine was cool-fermented in stainless steel to retain the grape flavors, then aged in seasoned French oak puncheons for seven months. 40% of the wine was barrel-fermented—10% new oak—with half of this portion undergoing malolactic fermentation to bring in a pleasing roundness. Cheers to that! Double Gold Medal winner. 97 points.

2025 Sauvignon Blanc
 Cuvée 128
 Anderson Valley, Mendocino

Three years ago, we planted Sauvignon Blanc vines in our Philo Hammer Olsen vineyard. To reduce competition with the vines, we control the weeds under the vine-row. For the first two years, we carefully hand-hoe the weeds since our babydoll sheep would munch the yet untrained vines; in the third year, and perhaps the fourth, we control the weeds by weed whacking (left). Once the vine trunks are strong enough, weed removal is performed using a tractor-driven implement (below) or sheep. Herbicides would have been cheaper and faster, but studies have shown that herbicides reduce soil fertility—just one of the reasons why our vineyards are herbicide-free.

Handwork

We're pleased by the flattering feedback we often receive about the exceptional quality-to-price ratio of Navarro wines. During our first tasting of the season in mid-December 2025, we sampled ten 2025 Sauvignon Blanc wines that we had produced from four distinct blocks. It was fascinating to taste wines from the same block, harvested on different dates—the early picks showcased grassy, herbal notes, while the later picks delighted with tropical aromas. One vineyard block presented an interesting experiment—it was split in two, with the southern rows historically producing less desirable wine compared to the northern sections. Plus, we experimented with another lot, fermenting one portion in ovals and the other in stainless steel, then aging it in puncheons. After careful rating, we decided on seven potential wines for the upcoming blending tastings, while three will be sold as bulk wine.

While these tastings are always educational and enjoyable, they also showcase the expertise behind Navarro's consistent quality—it's not just luck! 2025 Rosé of Pinot Noir

Anderson Valley, Mendocino

Harvesting Pinot Noir
at night under floodlights.

When the winery crew arrives in the morning, bins of night-harvested Pinot Noir are lined up. Ulises is forklifting bins of the fruit to be destemmed while the grapes are still cold. Twenty-eight bins were used in the production of this rosé.

Petite harvest, grand flavor

Pinot Noir clusters are small—about a quarter pound. There are probably about 3,500 clusters in each bin.

The weather in 2025 was nearly perfect for our Anderson Valley Pinot Noir! We experienced only one sizzling day over 100°F and just four additional warm days topping 90°F. With a modest crop in hand, our harvest wrapped up in just 35 days—although we did take an extra three weeks to patiently wait for our Cluster Select Late Harvest Riesling to develop that charming noble rot. Our Hammer Olsen field has a reputation for producing some of our finest rosé and consists of four distinct blocks, each showcasing different clones and rootstocks. The largest sections were planted back in 1991 with selections from two iconic California vineyards known for their excellent Pinot Noir production: Chalone and Martini. Then in 1992, we added two more blocks featuring the renowned UCD clone 4, affectionately known as the “Pommard” clone, alongside the esteemed French clone ENTAV115. After a careful series of tastings,

Mendocino Red Table Wine

The Pinot Noir portion of the 2024 Navarrouge was grown in Navarro's Garden Spot vineyard. The grapes were fermented in bins and punched down by hand to keep the tannins gentle.

Jim and Al Tollini discussing springtime pruning. Al provided the old-vine Zinfandel and Carignane for this bottling. The vines are 80 to 90 years old and are unirrigated, providing small clusters of intensely flavored fruit.

Ulises stacking barrels in the main barrel cellar. The Navarrouge was aged for 10 months in seasoned French oak barrels.

Mendo past in a glass

Introducing our full-bodied 2024 Navarrouge cuvée, featuring a star-studded cast! The spotlight shines on old-vine Zinfandel, old-vine Carignane and Anderson Valley Pinot Noir, each bringing their own magic to the mix. Sangiovese plays a vital supporting role, while Syrah, Grenache and Mourvèdre add just a sprinkle of charm. The Zinfandel grapes hailing from Al Tollini's goblet-trained vineyards, renowned for their luscious blackberry notes, elevate this Navarrouge. Planted by Al's grandfather long ago, the Carignane vines, which thrive without irrigation, produce grapes featuring delightful red fruit flavors with hints of forest floor. Meanwhile, the Pinot Noir from the lower Garden Spot contributes cherry notes, creating a lovely balance against the rich tannins of Zinfandel and Carignane.

We initially requested six tons of Bob Gibson's Sangiovese for our rosé wine ventures, but two barrels of red wine found their way into this blend. After crafting our 2024 Red Roan, a lively mix of Syrah, Grenache and Mourvèdre, we had a spare barrel that happily joined the Navarrouge party. Silver Medal winner.

2024 Pinot Noir
Anderson Valley, Mendocino

Hot air balloon above Navarro's South Hill Pinot Noir vineyard. This romantic photo was taken at harvest time 13 years ago. Unfortunately the balloon invaded our sense of privacy and the hot air furnace frightened the sheep and livestock dogs. The winds in Anderson Valley are unpredictable; consequently, the balloon flights haven't been repeated (thankfully for us and our livestock).

During harvest the pickers dump their grapes into one of four bins. To eliminate any leaves or unwanted clusters we employ four sorters to make sure what we process is just ripe Pinot Noir.

Cellar evolution

In the late '80s, we were excited to see the arrival of Pinot Noir clones from French nurseries, known as the "Dijon clones." We started with 113, 114 and 115 and later welcomed 667, 777 and 828. To find the best combinations for our Philo terroir, we divided each vineyard site into separate blocks for different clones and rootstocks. Clones 114 and 115 bring structure to the table, while 667 charms with its aromatic finesse and 777 delivers a lovely mix of power and elegance. In 2024, we crafted 34 exciting lots of Pinot Noir, and this bottling is a cuvée made from 16 of those lots: 34% clone 115, 26% 667, 17% 114, 12% UCD4, 6% 113 and 5% 777, all aged for 10 months in French oak barrels, 15% new. This gem snagged a Gold Medal at the West Coast Wine Competition, with judges raving about its "highly aromatic" notes of cherry dust and forest floor. We believe it captures the essence of Anderson Valley with vibrant red and black cherry notes. Sur lie barrel aging adds complexity, complemented by a toastiness from the new barrels. Horse sense

Navarro's Red Roan is a complex GSM blend featuring Grenache, Syrah and Mourvèdre, inspired by classic Rhône wines. We source our grapes from the Dolan family's Dark Horse Vineyards, located on a hillside with rich red volcanic soil just south of Ukiah. We've enjoyed a friendship with the Dolans for 50 years, which adds to our special connection. Farming here is biodynamic, aligning with Navarro's commitment to herbicide- and insecticide-free winemaking. The Grenache was the first to ripen in 2023, harvested on September 23, offering sweet fruit flavors that hint at strawberries. Two weeks later, we picked the Syrah, known for its robust tannins and black cherry notes. Finally, we harvested the Mourvèdre in mid-October, contributing earthy, forest floor characteristics to the blend. After destemming, the grapes were gently punched down by hand, and the juice aged for 10 months in seasoned French oak barrels. We can't wait for you to enjoy this well-rounded wine! Gold Medal winner. Best of Class. 93 points.
